ABSTRACT

A research bibliography, one of a series from the Education Library at the University of Michigan, lists over one hundred books and six periodicals on the subject of non-traditional education. The materials, appropriate for use by educators, parents, and community groups, date from 1967 through 1972. Free, open, and non-graded alternative schools at the primary, elementary, secondary, and higher education levels are mentioned in the titles of the books listed. The process of educational change, innovative teaching/learning techniques, and community-based education are also subjects of the materials. No annotations are given along with book title and publication information, but references are cited for the Education Library. Magazine titles and publication information suggest resources for current information on non-traditional education in the United States and Canada. (KSM)
